

Born and raised in New York as the eldest of five girls, Judy developed an early love for creativity, leadership, and service. She graduated with honors from Mount Union College in Alliance, Ohio, earning a bachelor's degree in Art before relocating to Fort Pierce with her husband.

Judy spent the next chapter of her career at the Vero Beach Press Journal, where she dedicated 25 years to Promotions, Marketing, and Advertising. As the newspaper industry evolved, she transitioned into real estate marketing, serving for a decade as the Marketing Specialist for Coldwell Banker Paradise.

Following the company's sale and restructuring, Judy brought her expertise to The Source, where she spent three and a half years as Marketing Manager. During her time there, she revitalized the organization's branding, redesigned collateral, strengthened social media presence, and supported major community events.

On July 7, 2025, Judy joined the Women's Refuge of Vero Beach as Director of Development. She brings to the ministry a deep passion for storytelling, relationship-building, and mission-driven communication, and is honored to support the work of providing help, hope, and healing to women and families in need.
